Surfing Etiquette Surfing Etiquette is the most important thing to learn before you set foot in the surf. These rules are not so much 'rules' as they are a proper code of conduct designed to keep everyone in the water safe and happy. People who repeatedly break these rules are often given the stink-eye, a stern talking to, yelled at with obscenities, or just flat out beat up.

Casual Friday means something different for every company. In a more formal business environment where people typically wear suits, appropriate casual attire is khakis or business casual trousers, a button front shirt, and no tie for men. However, when a company is business casual on other days, you may be able to wear jeans.
