Goodbye, Mr. Chips (1939 film) - Wikipedia

Goodbye, Mr Chips is a decidedly backwards looking film - produced at a time when America had no interest in looking backwards - especially to Britain's past. While the content is timeless and universal, 1969/70 was the year of Midnight Cowboy - a film whose gritty, urban decay realism and mainstream X rating changed Hollywood, and audience ...

Mr. Hilton's classic story of an English schoolmaster. Mr. Chipping, the classics master at Brookfield School since 1870, takes readers on a beguiling journey through the late 19th and early 20th centuries. Sometimes Chips, as he is affectionately known, is an old man who dreams by the fire; then he ...

Good-Bye, Mr. Chips by James Hilton

But "Goodbye, Mr. Chips" uses its budget quietly, with good taste, and succeeds in being a big movie without being a gross one. I think I enjoyed it about as much as any road show since "Funny Girl." And that surprised me, since so much of the critical reaction has been negative. Even at its worst, "Chips" is inoffensive in its sentimentality.

Goodbye, Mr. Chips Movie Review (1969) | Roger Ebert

Goodbye, Mr. Chips (1939) is the British-made, classic, sentimental tale of much-loved English schoolteacher guiding many generations of schoolboys through almost 60 years of education at the fictitious Brookfield School, from his early career days as a young classic scholar to his slightly doddering old age.
