I want to run a Python script from another Python script. I want to pass variables like I would using the command line. For example, I would run my first script that would iterate through a list of values (0,1,2,3) and pass those to the 2nd script script2.py 0 then script2.py 1, etc.. I found Stack Overflow question 1186789 which is a similar question, but ars's answer calls a function, where ...

What The Hell Happened: The movie was a much more novel idea when it was first in development back in 2008. Originally it was going to star Sacha Baron Cohen, with Ferrell as Watson -- which makes way more sense, considering Cohen has a more Holmes-like profile. And keep in mind, this was before everybody started hammering out fresh takes on the Holmes canon.

It's said that in life, there are two types of people: those who look at the glass as half empty, and those who see it as half full. But for those of us who've set the goal of starting a novel, I think it really comes down to how we view the blank page: those of us who find it exciting—full of possibility, hope, even adventure—and those who see it as intimidating—capable of inducing ...
